

LEARNING COMMUNITIES

EDWARDS
SCHOOL OF BUSINESS
UNIVERSITY OF SASKATCHEWAN

The University of Saskatchewan's Edwards School of Business is situated in Saskatoon, SK, on Treaty 6 Territory and the Homeland of the Métis. USask is one of the top research-intensive, medical doctoral universities in Canada, and is home to world-leading research in areas of global importance, like water and food security.

The "Us" in Business

Edwards Learning Communities are designed to put the "us" in business and the "u" in community.

Together with other first-year students, you will make new friends and develop your personal network which is pivotal to your success in navigating business school. These communities provide you with a structured and supportive environment to connect, learn, and grow during your university life and academic career.

Success looks different to everyone: learning communities are a way for you to explore what success means to you, whether that involves doing well in classes, discovering new interests, building friendship circles, or getting involved locally in the university community and beyond.

The Edwards Advantage

- Funding to study abroad (in Sweden, Spain, France, Chile, among others)
- Co-operative Education Program (paid internships with top companies)
- Over $1.9 million in scholarships
- Career support and development
- 94% employment rate of graduates
- Co-curricular funding to pursue conferences, case competitions and more

Enhance your university experience by joining a learning community

Build your network

Make connections to the students, faculty, alumni and staff, places and resources across campus that will support you on your journey and contribute to your overall success and well-being.

Explore career paths

Get introduced to programs and activities that are related to your interests and connect you with alumni and professionals who have turned similar interests into exciting careers.

Set yourself up for success

Learn how to take responsibility for your own learning and how to juggle classes, assignments, exams, extracurriculars from peer mentors. You'll be set for success with the confidence, skills, knowledge and connections to navigate business school, your university life and your academic career.

Why learning communities?

Find a study buddy

No more searching for a study buddy! Take core courses together allowing you to build relationships, share experiences and learn from each other. Get the support you need to choose and register in three core classes, setting you on the path to declaring your desired major.

Develop your leadership skills

Get guidance from upper year students to help you transition to university life and excel academically. Attend a weekly gathering, over the course of an academic term, to connect and develop skills to succeed in university (study skills, time management, mental health, etc.). Participation in a learning community is also a great resume item.

Start university feeling ready and well-supported

Join the Edwards learning community to meet friends fast, swap tips on surviving first year, and figure out business school together. It's relaxed, supportive, and makes campus feel a lot less overwhelming—and a lot more fun.

How does it work?

- Select a learning community that matches your career goals
- Shared schedule across 3 courses
- 50 minutes each week (LC hour) for the duration of one academic term
- Non-credit, no tuition and no assignments
- For your benefit, not for grades
- Not a study session
- Peer mentors are not subject tutors

Who can sign up?

Students who are starting their first year of university at Edwards are eligible to sign up for an Edwards Learning Community.

Sign up early – space is limited, and spots fill on a first-come, first-serve basis.
